New Twitter owner Elon Musk has announced that it will cost R145 or $8 a month for users to have a verification badge on the social media app.

The news came after Musk who recently bought the social network for $44bn fired top executives including CEO Parag Agrawal.

“Twitter’s current lords & peasants system for who has or doesn’t have a blue checkmark is bullshit. Power to the people! Blue for $8/month.

“This will also give Twitter a revenue stream to reward content creators,” said Musk. “There will be a secondary tag below the name for someone who is a public figure, which is already the case for politicians.”

Verified users like best selling author Stephen King said they would not be paying the fee.

“ $20 a month to keep my blue check? Fuck that, they should pay me. If that gets instituted, I'm gone like Enron.—

We need to pay the bills somehow. Twitter cannot rely entirely on advertisers. How about $8? ”

Last week Musk penned a letter to advertisers saying he bought Twitter for the future of civilization and not to make more money.

“I didn't do it because it would be easy. I didn't do it to make more money. I did it to try to help humanity, whom I love... Let us build something extraordinary together.”
