

Survey reveals interesting data about Nigeria's tech industry

On-demand software development company, Devcenter, recently released the data from its survey to Nigerian developers in the tech ecosystem. [INFOGRAPHIC]

Developers in Nigeria have received a lot of global attention recently but not much is known about them. Are they satisfied with their jobs, what is their preferred method of learning and what skill sets do they have? The infographic answers these questions and also provides information ranging from the most popular programming language among developers, their income level, the average developer's age, which platforms they develop software for, to their plans for the future of work.

click to enlarge

Devcenter matches remote teams to software projects to build world-class products. Devcenter Square is a community-driven network of over 2,800 software developers and designers in Africa.

Download the infographic here.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>