

Kingsley Holgate off to Sudan

This morning, Nando's founder Robert Brozin, helped launch "A Journey to Juba", the most recent expedition by adventurer, Kingsley Holgate, to distribute mosquito nets in Africa.

Holgate's expedition is headed to the Republic of South Sudan, which comes into existence on 9 July, following decades of conflict between north and south. Holgate's Land Rover party is carrying a Scroll of Peace and Goodwill in Support of Malaria Prevention as well as mosquito nets provided by UAM (United Against Malaria) of which Nando's is a proud partner, to its base camp at Nile River Explorers at Bujagali Falls. From there the party will split, with some volunteers taking a 600km Nile journey by inflatable boat to meet the Land Rover team in Juba, in time for the Independence Day celebrations.
