

Bombardier Transportation appoints a new MD for South Africa

Bombardier Transportation has appointed Makgola Makololo as its new managing director for South Africa to oversee the company's strategy development and deployment in the country.

She replaces the former managing director for South Africa, Aubrey Lekwane, who will take over the head of institutional relations for South Africa role within the company.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>