

#BeautifulNews: Football, meet feminism

The first time Happiness Gutshwa picked up a soccer ball, she held her future in her hands. Not that she knew it at the time. Just 11 years old, she couldn't have imagined how far the sport would take her. At first she played with anyone willing to join. It was only as she got older that Gutshwa noticed the gender bias on the field. But this has only served to motivate her further. Despite the fact that men still get the lion's share of sporting coverage and support, Gutshwa is determined to make a difference with Khayelitsha's first women's club.

Read Happiness Gutshwa's full story here.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>