

SA/Indian partnership offers mobile technology and software development

Khanyisa Real Systems (KRS), a Cape Town-based Microsoft Partner software development company, has announced its partnership with Indian-based enterprise mobility company, Winjit Technologies.

Through this new partnership, KRS immediately increases its mobile solution capabilities and capacity. Winjit has delivered more than 4000 innovative and customisable apps to organisations worldwide, so it brings extensive experience to the South African market.

KRS will handle the business requirements, as well as the quality of the software delivered by the partnership, providing a direct and local interface between all parties concerned and will have a dedicated team from the development house in India.

For Winjit, the partnership opens access to KRS's significant experience in developing Web APIs and large database systems, as it has the knowledge and understanding of what is required on the continent to develop and deliver the right apps to cater to its audiences optimally, whether on iOS, Android or Windows Phone.
