

Daily News publishes again

The paper might be only eight pages thick and some of the content a bit stale, but the Daily News has finally hit the streets of Zimbabwe again after police complied with a Harare High Court order and withdrew from the printing works for the first time since it was shut down in September. "We are publishing this issue just to let you know that we are back," says chief executive Sam Sipepa Nkomo.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>