Having more female representation in a company has been proven to benefit the business, not just from an equality aspect only. Research by McKinsey Global Institute, found that the global GDP could be increased by $12tn by 2025 through the advancement of women in the workplace.

The poster features a large image of a woman wearing a traditional African headwrap on the left side. The background is a mix of blue and green abstract shapes. The text 'AMASA PRESENTS' is at the top left, followed by 'SHE LEADS. SHE EMPOWERS' in large bold letters, and 'THE UNIQUE QUALITIES OF WOMEN LEADERSHIP' below it. Six circular portraits of women are arranged in two columns. Each portrait is accompanied by the woman's name and title. At the bottom, the date and time are listed, along with a Zoom Webinar icon and a Facebook Live icon. A logo for 'AMASA THOUGHT IGNITERS' is also present.

According to getsmarter.com, the unique qualities women bring in the workplace and leadership roles can benefit companies by having a more diverse approach to problem solving, increased organisational collaboration, enhanced employee engagement and improved financial performance.

Women possess natural soft skills that make them invaluable assets, while technical skills, experience and knowledge are important for most roles, companies are now regarding soft skills as critical. A study by global consulting firm Hay Group found that women outperform men in 11 of 12 key emotional intelligence competencies.

Most of the achievements by female leaders are not as widely published and talked about as they should. Their journey is often the toughest with many obstacles to overcome.

Join Amasa Ignite Webinar as we host women in the business, media and broader communications sectors to share their invaluable insights and journeys from a South African and global perspective on issues of leadership, navigating the current volatile environment, mentorship and more. The panelist are as follows:

Yvonne Johnston – Master Coach & Business Strategist. Lethepu Matshaba – Vice President Home Care, Unilever Africa. Mathe Okaba – CEO ASA. Kelebogile Ramokgopa – Educator & Founder at Secrets of Sisterhood. Memoria Masilela, Amasa Vice Chairperson & Account Manager
